To whom it may concern,

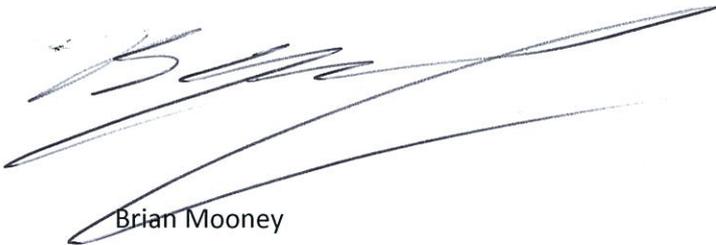

I have recently had the pleasure of having Rhett Brown address both our own and other subcontractors' staff on a large construction site in Auckland.

Rhett spoke for about 45 minutes on his life before and after his tragic, life changing accident.

His delivery style and obvious physical disability had a very real effect on the 60 or so members of the audience who listened intently to his message of why it so important not to cut corners in respect of safety and to think seriously about the common held belief that "It'll never happen to me". Here was living proof that it can and does happen to Joe Average, hard working Kiwi.

I can thoroughly recommend Rhett to anyone wanting to deliver a hard hitting, thought provoking safety message in the workplace.
